CARDINAL CORDIAL

His Eminence Receives "General" Jones and Little Band of Pilgrims.

DOES NOT INDORSE CAUSE

Marchers Visit City Hall, Newspaper Plants, and Are Tendered Luncheon.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Baltimere, Md., February 25.—Rosalio
Gurdiner Jones and her little band of hopeful suffragettes were signally hon-ored to-day by an audience with His Eminence, James Cardinal Gibbons.

It was very informal, very short and filled with little catches of embarrassment on the part of the pilgrims. Mrs. Emmeline Parkhurst sought to call upon Cardinal Gibbons about a year ago, but failed. The cardinal had come out flat-ly against the cause.

But he received the pilgrims to-day with all the gracious kindliness that has built the heart monument for him in Baltimore. While he made it plain that he did not indorse the cause for which these women are working, he did it in a manner that attached each of the pilgrims to his already vast le-General Jones, smiling as usual and

The cardinal, clad in his loose flow"Votes for Women" was boldly printrobes, his slight figure bending ed. The cardinal took it and his smile forward in a gesture of welcome, and a courteous simile upon his kindly face, was standing at the far end of the chamber. The big room was rather gloony in its sindows and half light. The cardinal said nothing, but he bowed slightly and stretched forth his hand.

Shatters Barriers of Formulity.

For just a moment, General Jones hesitated. Her self-possession deserted her for the briefest time, but the smile on the face of the cardinal and the outstretched hand shattered the smile on the face of the cardinal and the outstretched hand shattered the barriers of formality. With the little unaffected gesture of pleasure that has endeared her to all those who have met her, Miss Jones walked forward. The cardinal grasped her hand and the ground over which you have traveled, and harder than the stones which have bruised your feet. I am sure that you will have earned a good rest, when your journey has ended? bowed again.

"I have the honor of meeting General Rosalie Jones?" he asked.

"Yes, Your Eminence. And we have been too presumptuous?" she replied.

Then and there all formality vanished. Cardinal Gibbons—the mere cardinal laughed together.

Words of Parting.

He arose, straightened himself to his highest, and raised his hands. The Words of Parling.

He arose, straightened himself to his highest, and rated his hands. The little band was receding toward the door, "God bless you," were the single words of parling from the cardinal. A photographer, whose activities were protested by everybody present, toploade a tremendous charge of flash light powder. The cardinal started as though a shot had been area. The plagrims had departed.

Nothing detracts from the attractiveness of woman as dull, faded, lustreless hair.

There is no excuse for this condition nowadays, because notice is hereby given to the readers of The Times plepate that Parisian Sage, the quies acting hair restorer, is sold with a large bottle.

Since its introduction into America, Parlsian Sage has had an immense sale, and here are the reasons:

It is seef and barpless. Contains no poisonous lead or harmful ingredients, it cures dandruff in two weeks by killing the dandruff germ.

It gives life 4 and heavily to the hair, it is not sticky or grasy.

In the destruction of his beautiful home near Sedley, in Southampton County, yesterday morning, Philip Rodgers estimates his loss at fully $10,000, with only $4,000 insurance. Everything in the house, with the exception of some valuable silverware, was lost. The members of the family were fortunate to escape in scanty clothing with their lives. The fire had made great headway when discovered. Mr. Rodgers and Jesse F. West, a guest, hoth received slight burns in the effort to save property, and W. S. Urquhart was injured by jumping from a window. The smokehouse, with a large quantity of meat, was also burned.
